Dear Sheryl:

After two full days of work by me, my bookkeeper and staff, responsive, redacted bank records of my firm are ready to be produced, subject to a helpful (to you) cover letter which I will draft on Monday. Meanwhile, I have not heard back regarding your review of the proposed confidentiality agreement which I sent yesterday. Given the sensitive nature of the firm's banking records, among other documents, I would appreciate the finalization and execution of the confidentiality agreement prior to sending these records, which will, of course, be turned over immediately upon execution.

As indicated by her appearance and accompanying letter, Ms. Berney will be substituting in for all of Mr. Gushlak's counsel in the 1782 matter on Monday. Therefore, please contact and work with her on finalizing the confidentiality agreement. You will find her very pleasant to work with. She looks forward to resolving all discovery issues on an amicable and expeditious basis.
